HONGRONG, PEBRUARY 9TH, 1875.

As a signal proof that British enterprise is against Ghun Ayee. still vigorous and on the move, we welcome the report of the Burmo-Chinese Expedition. The object of this expedition is well worth the risk and trouble that will be encountered fore its task is accomplished. The mission, which is under the leadership of Colonel HORACE BEOWNE, was to proceed by way of Ava to Bhame. Thence to Momein, or, as the Chinese call it, Tang-yue-chan, which town is situated near the head of the Taeping river. From Momein the party will pass on to Talifu, and thence to Yunnan. On leaving Yunnan, they will proceed northwards to the great southerly bend of the river Kinsha-kiang, known out of the province of Yunnan as the Yang-tse-kiang, the noblest of all the great rivers in Asia. This latter portion of the journey to Shanghai will, of course, be performed in boats. This route has never yet, we believe, been followed by any Eu- found the prisoner in the bouse with four of ing, while for a time it operated as a barrier to ropean, and the difficulties of the way are his jackets in his possession, having taken them the progress of his pursuers. A long and frequently rough sea passage would be avoided by sending goods by this route, a great portion of which could yet be performed by water, without, however, encountering the adverse monsoons, which at certain seasons make the navigation of the China Seas tedious, difficult, and dangerous. Mr. Eden, the Chief Commissioner bowever, the manager. of British Burmah, to whose energy and pluck the expedition is to be mainly attributed, sought the advice and assistance of the leading merchants of Rangoon in starting it, and it was fitted out mainly in their interest. PROGRESS OF THE COTTON MANU-FACTURE IN GERMANY. An article in a recent number of the Berlin Handelsblatt thrown some light upon the important question of foreign competition in one of our greatest industries the cotton mann. facture. The progress made by Germany of late years in trade and manufactures is scarcely less remarkable than the success which she has achieved in war. In the five years, 1836-40, the average annual consumption of cotton yarn in Germany amounted to 508,360 owt., of which only 30 per cent was apon at home. THE SEASONS. I love the winter, crisp and cold, With klittering ice and snow. With clear-blue sky, and bracing wind, And faces all aglow.

I love the fresh and balmy spring, With leaves and blossoms fair: With murry birds on overy spray, And perfumes in the air. I love the quiet summer time, When birds have sung their fill.

And earth and air are still But most I love that golden time That comes in autumn days, When hill, and dale, and glassy lake Are wrapped in purple haze. Tis like the last bright smile that steals
